ABOUT:

Hitting the spirit of the times: The artist Kristo von Bremke (*1981) creates his large-format works as a successful symbiosis of action painting, abstract expressionism and street art. Between wildness and simplicity: The paintings always offer something new and exciting to discover. The artworks are convincing with their modern color compositions and thus capture the spirit of the times.

Kristo's art – both in terms of appearance and creation – follows directly in the tradition of color field painting by artists such as Mark Rothko and Helen Frankenthaler; influences from German artist Katharina Grosse are also unmistakable. The color gradients, which are combined with elements of graffiti, are sometimes harmonious, sometimes surprising. The emotional and gestural art breaks free from all rules – more than just an artwork, each piece becomes an event.

The compositions are a mix of planning, spontaneity, and coincidence. Kristo calls the process “planned coincidence.” The sources of inspiration are diverse: shapes and colors from fashion, design, and nature in particular.

The materials used are primarily acrylic paint and spray paint. But natural color sources such as organic juices or coffee are also part of his work. When you look at the artworks up close, there's a rich micro-world that emerges from the various acrylic textures in combination with spray paint.

CAREER:

Kristo von Bremke's artistic beginnings lie in the hip-hop and graffiti subculture of the 1990s. In addition to his professional career (as a successful founder and entrepreneur in the media and start-up sector), the self-taught artist Kristo von Bremke has also been active as an artist for several years now. This special career brings together the best of the worlds of entrepreneurship and artistry: Creativity and mindset combined with strong communication and organizational skills. True to the motto “No Guts No Glory”, Kristo wants to prove that you can realize your dreams several times over – if only you have the courage to move out of your comfort zone. From 2025, Kristo von Bremke will dedicate himself entirely to art.
